What is the “JF Standard for Japanese-Language Education”?

- A tool for designing teaching, learning and assessment programs in Japanese language education.
- A guide for course design, lesson planning, and teaching materials development using can-do statements.

Teaching

Learning

Assessment

The principle of the JF Standard

- The Japan Foundation (JF) has been developing the JF Standard since 2005 based on the principle of Japanese for mutual understanding.
- The learning of languages has become increasingly important in this globalized society where people of diverse cultures with diverse values have more occasion to communicate with each other.
- The JF believes two competences are required to realise the goal of mutual understanding through Japanese language:

competence
in accomplishing communicative tasks which involves what a person can do by using Japanese

Competence
in intercultural understanding which involves understanding and respecting other cultures by expanding one's horizon through encounters with various cultures.

CEFR as reference in developing the JF Standard

- The JF Standard was developed based on the concepts and content of the CEFR, which serves as the basis of language education in Europe.
- The CEFR has influenced language learning not only in Europe, but also on a global scale, and has been used in various language education spheres since its publication in 2001.
- The JF Standard enables stakeholders in Japanese language education to exchange information on their teaching and learning with stakeholders of other languages through the common proficiency levels of the CEFR.

✘CEFR stands for “Common European Framework of Reference for Languages: Learning, teaching, assessment”

C2

Can understand with ease virtually everything heard or read.

Can summarise information from different spoken and written sources, reconstructing arguments and accounts in a coherent presentation.

Can express him/herself spontaneously, very fluently and precisely, differentiating finer shades of meaning even in more complex situations.

Can understand a wide range of demanding, longer texts, and recognise implicit meaning.

Can express him/herself fluently and spontaneously without much obvious searching for expressions.

Can use language flexibly and effectively for social, academic and professional purposes.

Can produce clear, well-structured, detailed text on complex subjects, showing controlled use of organisational patterns, connectors and cohesive devices.

Can understand the main ideas of complex text on both concrete and abstract topics, including technical discussions in his/her field of specialisation.

Can interact with a degree of fluency and spontaneity that makes regular interaction with native speakers quite possible without strain for either party.

Can produce clear, detailed text on a wide range of subjects and explain a viewpoint on a topical issue giving the advantages and disadvantages of various options.

B1

Can understand the main points of clear standard input on familiar matters regularly encountered in work, school, leisure, etc..

Can deal with most situations likely to arise whilst travelling in an area where the language is spoken.

Can produce simple connected text on topics which are familiar or of personal interest.

Can describe experiences and events, dreams, hopes and ambitions and briefly give reasons and explanations for opinions and plans.

Can understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to areas of most immediate relevance (e.g. very basic personal and family information, shopping, local geography, employment).

Can communicate in simple and routine tasks requiring a simple and direct exchange of information on familiar and routine matters.

Can describe in simple terms aspects of his/her background, immediate environment and matters in areas of immediate need.

Can understand and use familiar and very basic phrases aimed at the satisfaction of needs of a concrete type.

Can introduce him/herself and others and can ask and answer questions about personal details such as where he/she lives, people he/she knows and things he/she has.

Listening	I can understand familiar words and very basic phrases concerning myself, my family and immediate concrete surroundings when people speak slowly and clearly.	I can understand phrases and the highest frequency vocabulary related to areas of most immediate personal relevance (e.g., very basic personal and family information, shopping, local area, employment). I can catch the main point in short, clear, simple messages and announcements.	I can understand the main points of clear standard speech on familiar matters regularly encountered in work, school, leisure, etc. I can understand the main point of many radio or TV programmes on current affairs or topics of personal or professional interest.	I can understand extended speech and lectures and follow even complex lines of argument provided the topic is reasonably familiar. I can understand most TV news and current affairs programmes. I can understand the majority of films in standard dialect.	I can understand extended speech even when it is not clearly structured and when relationships are only implied and not signalled explicitly. I can understand television programmes and films without too much effort.	I have no difficulty in understanding any kind of spoken language, whether live or broadcast, even when delivered at fast native speed, provided I have some time to get used to the accent.
Reading	I can understand familiar names, words and very simple sentences, for example on notices and posters or in catalogues.	I can read very short texts. I can find predictable information in simple everyday texts such as advertisements, prospectuses, timetables and understand short personal letters.	I can understand main points of clear standard speech on familiar matters regularly encountered in work, school, leisure, etc.	I can understand articles and learned texts with some problems in detail. I can understand attitudes or opinions and can follow contemporary events.	I can understand long and complex factual and literary texts, appreciating distinctions of style. I can understand specialised articles and longer technical instructions, even when they do not relate to my field.	I can read with ease virtually all forms of the written language, including abstract, structurally or linguistically complex texts such as manuals, specialised articles and literary works.
Spoken production	I can interact in a simple way provided the other person is prepared to repeat or rephrase things at a slow rate of speech and to reformulate what I'm asking for.	I can communicate and routine tasks in a simple and direct way for the exchange of information on familiar topics. I can handle very simple social exchanges though I can't usually understand enough to keep the conversation going myself.	I can understand main points of clear standard speech on familiar matters regularly encountered in work, school, leisure, etc.	I can interact with a degree of spontaneity in regular situations with native speakers where possible. I can take an active part in familiar conversations.	I can express myself fluently and spontaneously without much obvious searching for expressions. I can use language flexibly and effectively for social and professional purposes. I can understand the main points of complex texts.	I can take part effortlessly in any conversation or discussion and have a good familiarity with idiomatic expressions and colloquialisms. I can express myself fluently and convey shades of meaning precisely. If I do have a problem I can backtrack and structure around the difficulty so smoothly that other people are hardly aware of it.
Writing	I can write short, simple messages, for example postcard, or filling in forms with personal details, for example entering my name, nationality and address on a hotel registration form.	I can write short, simple notes and messages. I can write a very simple personal letter, for example thanking someone for something.	I can write simple connected text on topics which are familiar or of personal interest. I can write personal letters describing experiences and impressions.	I can write clear, simple text on a range of subjects of personal interest. I can write an informal letter or short report or essay on a topic, giving reasons against or in favour of a particular point of view. I can highlight the personal significance of events and experiences.	I can write clear, smoothly-flowing text in an appropriate style. I can write complex letters, reports or articles which present a case with an effective logical structure which helps the recipient to notice and remember significant points. I can write summaries and reviews of professional or literary works.	I can write clear, smoothly-flowing text in an appropriate style. Levels

Features of the CEFR

- The CEFR does not say how languages should be taught, but it is fundamental to the action-oriented approach that language learning is a variety of language use, which means that language learning too requires us to use strategies to draw on linguistic resources in order to perform communicative acts (Little2008).
- The CEFR is a generic framework, so the can-do descriptors are often very general. Therefore for Japanese, a language specific framework is useful in order to show specific settings in which the target language is used.
- CEFR descriptors apply to adult language users, and are not always relevant to a classroom setting (Kedde2004). The JF Standard enables teachers to create can-do statements suitable for their learners.

The JF Standard Tree

Concept of communication through languages: “The JF Standard Tree”

JAPANFOUNDATION

The JF Standard Tree depicts the connection between communicative activities and communicative language competences.

JF Standard Tree

Communicative language competences enable a person to conduct communicative language activities.

communicative language competences are depicted as the roots of a tree, and underpin communicative activities.

●linguistic competences :

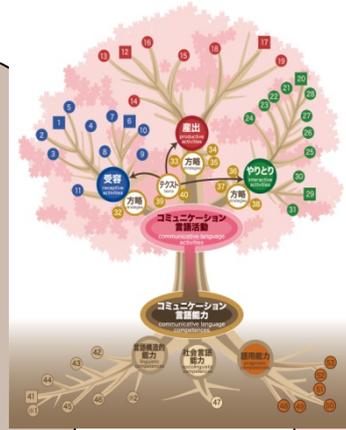

comprise lexical, grammatical, phonological, orthographic, etc. elements

●sociolinguistic competences :

relate to the knowledge and skills in using language appropriately according to the relationship with interlocutors and situations.

●pragmatic competences :

relate to the learner's knowledge and skills in structuring a discourse, language functions and purposes of the communication.

communicative language activities are underpinned by communicative language competences, and are depicted as spreading branches of a tree to indicate their diversity.

They can be classified into,

receptive activities (reading and listening), productive activities (speaking and writing)

interactive activities (engaging in a conversation)

Texts are used in activities . Texts can combine receptive, productive and interactive activities . Each of the receptive, productive and interactive activities involve their own strategies

Language communication requires a variety of other elements, such as sociocultural knowledge, intercultural awareness, and study skills in addition to the competences and activities mentioned above.

Portfolio for learning and assessment

Portfolio in the JF Standard

The portfolio is a tool which learners use to record and reflect on their learning process.

In the JF Standard, the portfolio is composed of the following three components: assessment tables, records of linguistic and cultural experiences, and learning achievements.

Assessment tables

are set by teachers in line with the teaching objectives

- self-assessment checklists
- assessment standards and assessment sheets for learning activities
- certificates of completion , etc

Records of linguistic and cultural experiences

Learners record their linguistic and cultural experiences

- reflection sheets, etc

Learning achievements

Learners collect their achievements in line with the course objectives and their own objectives.

- compositions, speeches, other audio materials
- tests
- project work, etc

"enTree - Halina! Be A NIHONGOJIN" materials developed by DepED/BSE, Philippines with the Japan Foundation

My progress in learning Nihongo & Japanese culture! Name: _____

Grow your J-Tree bigger and richer!

Write down what you have learnt, what you have realized, and what you have discovered through Nihongo & Japanese culture class! You can draw additional leaves if you like. Of course, you can also attach extra sheets of paper if your tree has grown too tall!

Unit () Session ()

Others:

- I can sing (a) Japanese song(s)
- I can invite my friends to my home
- I can cheer my friends and reply if someone cheers me up
- I can say what I usually do in my pastime
- I can say my impressions about a particular subject
- I can say my favorite subject
- I can introduce my school
- I can exchange some info about my daily schedule with my friends
- I can say greetings before and after meals
- I can ask and talk about one's daily meals with my friends
- I can say what I like and ask what someone likes
- I can express my feelings of surprise, check or amazement
- I can express my apologies and gratitude
- I can say how old I am or how old someone is
- I can say my birthday and I can ask and say someone else's birthday
- I can introduce my family
- I can ask friends how they feel when they look sick or sad
- I can understand teacher's instructions like please listen in Nihongo
- I can greet when I've met someone
- I can react in Nihongo when someone says something
- I can do self-introductions by saying my nickname and my favorite word
- I can say my name and nationality
- I can write my sickness in Katakana

Tick the boxes if you can do the following tasks in Nihongo! Do your best to get to the top. As you climb up higher and higher, you will see a new world bloom forth before your very eyes!

Add words like "fluently", "with confidence" or "slowly" and the dates you wrote these words on the spaces provided, to describe your progress. (Ex: fluently [JH 210]). Let's keep learning!

Write the names of languages you know on the water droplets. Linguistic knowledge is like precious water that helps your J-Tree to grow!

I can read Nihongo

I can write some words in Nihongo. The words I can write are _____

I can write my sickness in Katakana

For every quarter, after the exam, reflect on what you can and cannot do at this stage. Then, think about and write your learning plan to further improve the things that you can already do and how to overcome the things that you still cannot do. Let's do our best together!

What I can and I cannot do now:

enTree 1

Evaluation sheet for "enTree book"

Name _____ Date _____ /40

1. Promote here the entries, which you think are your best, original or most unique works, or the parts which you have innovated the most, etc.
(e.g. I did my best to make my family tree in unit 5. I like it the best among my entries. / I did my best to make my "enTree book" colorful and interesting!)

2. Evaluation (evaluator's name: _____)

2.1 Are all of the materials pasted in your "enTree book"? Write the number in the evaluation box. (20 points)

Minimal Achievement (0)	Some Achievement (10)	Commendable Achievement (15)	Outstanding Achievement (20)	Next Step (20)	Evaluation
Less than 65% of materials are pasted.	At least 65% of materials are pasted.	All of the materials are in "enTree book" but some materials have not been pasted and not properly ordered.	All of the materials are pasted on "enTree book" and properly ordered.	In addition to all of the materials pasted on "enTree book", original ideas are used to keep the "enTree book" clean and intact like using plastic cover, masking tape among others.	/20

2.2 Are the titles and the learning dates written on each entry? Write the number in the evaluation box. (20 points)

Minimal Achievement (0)	Some Achievement (10)	Commendable Achievement (15)	Outstanding Achievement (20)	Next Step (20)	Evaluation
No title of Unit and learning date is written.	Few entries have the title of Unit and the learning date.	Some entries have the title of Unit and the learning date.	All of each entry has the title of Unit and the learning date.	Besides the title of unit and the learning date, there are original ideas to look for a certain material easily like making tabs with the unit no. on it or highlighting the title and the date.	/20

2.3 Evaluator's comments and signature
(e.g. You have 6 siblings! I didn't know that. Inaa! Your family looks very close.)
