Head of School’s Report

In 2005, the School had many achievements. The Bachelor of Accountancy and Bachelor of Business Studies (Accounting) were accredited by CPA Australia and the Chartered Institute of Management Accounting (CIMA) in the UK. These accreditations will allow our accounting graduates to join prestigious international professional accounting bodies in addition to the Institute of Chartered Accountants of New Zealand.

The third year of the Bachelor of Accountancy was offered for the first time in 2005. Five new 300 level papers were offered in advanced financial accounting, management accounting, auditing, taxation and information systems. The students’ feedback has been very positive. We are pleased with the graduation of the first Bachelor of Accountancy cohort. It is also very pleasing that three out of the nine Massey Scholars in the College of Business from the May 2006 graduation in Palmerston North were graduates of the School.

The School had a successful year in research. Two staff members completed their PhD theses (Drs Ainul Islam and Mahmood Momin). Twenty-three articles were published in international and national refereed journals including Journal of International Accounting Research, Accounting Forum, Journal of Accounting and Public Policy, Accounting, Auditing and Accountability Journal, and Company and Securities Law Journal. Two books authored by staff and five chapters in Books were published. Staff members presented fifty-three papers in international Accounting and Business Law Conferences such as the Conference of the American Accounting Association (San Francisco), Conference of the Accounting and Finance Association of Australia and New Zealand (Melbourne), the Asian Pacific Conference on International Accounting Issues (Wellington), Conference of the European Congress of Work and Organisational Psychology Conference (Istanbul) and the Conference of the Australia and New Zealand Education Law Association (Perth), amongst many others. Several discussion papers were published in the School’s Discussion Paper Series. The School of Accountancy’s Seminar Series had visiting presenters from various overseas universities presenting their papers, as well as staff members and PhD students. Some presentations were made on all three campuses, Albany, Palmerston North and Wellington.

A significant proportion of students in the School study extramurally and to this end the School has enhanced its online delivery and support where WebCT is becoming an important part of the educational experience of our students. The School is committed to quality education and will use every opportunity to enhance the learning experience of students by improving the use of information technology as a teaching tool.

The Impact of NAS: Evidence from Value Relevance of Earnings in Bangladesh

The thesis examines the impact on investor confidence in Bangladesh of a company receiving non-audit services (NAS) from the company's auditor. The thesis reviews the regulatory structure and other relevant features of the institutional environment in Bangladesh and examines the quantitative impact by consideration of the association between market returns and earnings. As Bangladesh is an emerging economy with weak regulation and governance, the thesis makes a significant contribution to the literature on auditor independence. The thesis finds that the impact is negative but that choice of a big-firm auditor can alleviate the impact.

Corporate Social Responsibility and Reporting by Multinationals in Bangladesh - Multiple Case Evidences from Subsidiaries of UK Multinationals

Despite the large number of studies of corporate social reporting (CSR) practices relatively a few of these studies have concentrated on the issues in least developed country (LDC). Although there are many plausible explanations for the emphasis in the literature it is still far from clear in a LDC what responsibility is assumed by corporations and to whom they are accountable? Most importantly, what patterns of CSR obtain in developing countries and why, in particular, whether MNCs adopt different disclosure strategies in different countries and why? It is not clear that the usual theoretical explanations - drawing from, e.g. stakeholder theory or cultural differences - are sufficiently developed to give a deep understanding of the reasons for - and the importance of CSR in developing country. It is also far from clear from present explanations of accountability literature whether accountability is channelled from the developed country to a developing country as a western fashion through multinationals and their subsidiaries social reporting practices. This study attempts to remedy this by examining CSR in a comparative context: comparing UK and Bangladesh CSR and then enquiring in more detail (a) the difference in practices within MNCs reporting in the UK and Bangladesh and (b) the explanations and reasons for the differences via case studies. This study employs both quantitative and qualitative methods. Content analysis is made to quantify Corporate Social responsibility Reporting issues provided in annual reports of the companies. Hundred annual reports for largest UK companies for each of the year 1999 and 2000, and 50 annual reports of largest Bangladeshi companies each for the same years are considered for the content analysis. On the other hand, 59 interviews are conducted to gather qualitative data.

The Debt Equity Distinction and Classification of Hybrid Financial Instruments

The objective is to improve understanding of the classifications adopted for the reporting of hybrid financial instruments in the Statement of Financial Performance in an environment where choice is not constrained by accounting regulations. To do this the research seeks to explain the influences on manager's motivations to choose one classification in preference to another and to assess the effect of different classifications on the perceptions of a major group of users, shareholders. The information will be relevant to accounting regulators and will extend the body of accounting knowledge in two areas that have been of interest to accounting academics and the accounting profession. The first of these areas investigates one aspect of the forces that shape accounting practice by identifying determinants that influence accounting choices. The other investigates whether items of accounting information are relevant to investors. The research will also complement the finance literature on capital structure choice and the use of hybrid financial instruments.

Internet Technology and Issues Relating to Users of Financial Reports

Development in information and communication technology has led many organizations in many countries to consider the impact of the Internet on the delivery and dissemination of financial information (Beattie and Pratt, 2003). Corporate reports are increasingly moving from traditional printed annual report toward the worldwide electronic medium of the Internet (Bury, 1999; Nordberg, 1999; Romain, 2000). The traditional paper-based reporting paradigm will continue to breakdown and moving towards Internet reporting, changing as companies bring new technologies to the process and as information users find new ways to gather and analyze corporate information (O’Kelly, 2000; Debreceny et al, 2003; Barac, 2003).

To date, most empirical studies of the Internet financial reporting have documented the web practices of companies. Research examine on users’ perspective, however, is sparse. In light of this, this research will look into the internet technology and issues relating to users of financial reports. The relevance of this study is that in order for companies to enhance company’s value, the companies need to have a clear understanding of where their value truly resides and modes by which to measure value creation so that information could be conveyed to the users.

Performance Auditing and Public Sector Accountability: A Fijian Case Study

Public sector auditing has expanded from providing an independent and professional assurance on the usage of resources by the government to a wide range of management issues including performance auditing (Burrowes and Persson, 2000; Parker, 1990). A historical analysis of the Anglo-American literature on development and emergence of public sector performance auditing indicates that there were various factors, which led to the development of performance auditing. Some of these factors are: public sector auditing profession, the changes in the legislature and statutes, calls for greater government accountability in the use of public sector resources by social and other lobby groups and, in some instances, the government itself. Literature on performance auditing has established that it is widely accepted that performance-auditing focuses on economy, efficiency and effectiveness but a clearly defined meaning of these concepts is not easily discernible. Nonetheless, advocates of performance auditing promote the view that performance auditing would improve public sector accountability by focusing on the way the public sector resources are managed.

In the Fijian context, the Fijian Audit Office implemented public sector performance auditing and then it was withdrawn. The aim of this research project is to understand the practice and the processes by which performance auditing was undertaken and then withdrawn in Fiji by the Fiji Audit Office. The research project is also aims to establish a theoretical meaning of economy, efficiency and effectiveness.

The research will be grounded in Laughlin’s (1995) Middle Range Theory in which a skeletal framework for both methodology and theory are fleshed out in the context of an empirical research.

Accounting in the Dutch East-India Company During the First 10 Years Accounting (1602-1612)

Seventeenth century Netherlands business was organised along capitalistic principles, with an emphasis on public participation, market forces and optimisation of profits. Prime amongst these business organisations was the Vereenigde Oost-Indische Compagnie (United East-India Company or VOC), which commenced operations on the 23rd of April, 1602.

The VOC’s capital, obtained by public subscription, amounted to £6,459,840 and, by the standards of the day, it was a very large and highly risky commercial venture. Its organisation allows to be described as the first public company in history.

The accounting historian’s interest in the VOC lies in its size, its geographic scope of control and its pioneering role as a public company with global interests. It can be assumed that the company’s organisation was influenced by contemporary accounting methods and, in turn, that it had an influence on the development of accountancy in general. The aim of the research is to discover and analyse these influences in the light of the context in which the VOC was established and operated during its first accounting period (1602-1612).

Political influence, corporate governance and financial reporting quality: Evidence from government-linked and non-government-linked companies in Malaysia.

Recent well-known corporate misdeeds suggest that financial reporting quality has been questioned and is under scrutiny (Penman, 2003) and that poor corporate governance structure has been identified as one of the contributing factors to this (Claessens and Fan, 2002). In addition, political influence has also been related to the issuance of low quality financial reports (Ball et.al., 2003; Luez and Oberholzer-Gee, 2003a) and weak corporate governance (ADB, 1998).

Based on contingency and agency theories, the proposed study will attempt to investigate the relationship between political influence, corporate governance and financial reporting quality. Data from 1999 to 2003 of Malaysian government-linked and non-government linked companies will be used. It is hypothesized that political influence causes lower financial reporting quality; political influence causes weaker corporate governance; weak corporate governance causes low financial reporting quality; and corporate governance mediates the effects of political influence on financial reporting quality. Seemingly unrelated regression analysis will be employed to test the hypotheses. In addition, a qualitative approach (interviews) will be used to complete the triangulation design of the proposed research.

The findings are expected to empirically support previous studies on the effects of political influence on corporate governance and financial reporting quality. The proposed study will also provide insights and additional guidance for regulators and policy makers in improving the design of corporate governance features and financial reporting frameworks.

Equality as a Moral, Political and Legal Concept

The study is a conceptual one looking at the way the term "equality" is used and whether it is a useful term. Nicholas suggests that it is and defends the idea that all social policies must meet the threshold of equality in a basic sense that the interests of all concerned persons must be taken into account. It is a belief in this fundamental equality that explains our abhorrence of racism and sexism. Equality is not just the "formal" empty concept that "likes should be treated alike" which might be thought to need to be saved by a "substantive" equality which achieves real equality. What is morally important is that all should be treated as equals; with equal concern and respect. This basic equality has a place among other social ideals and its relationship with these is considered together with its implications.

The Role of Tax Practitioners in Tax Compliance: Expectations, Identities and Behaviours

A consistent implication of prior studies on tax practitioners, conducted primarily in the United States, is that they can exert a significant influence over taxpayers in the tax compliance process. With a substantial percentage of business taxpayers using the services of tax practitioners, the type of advice provided by the practitioner is a crucial part of the system of voluntary compliance. The research focuses on the role of tax practitioners in tax compliance in New Zealand. Given the interactive nature of this type of service encounter, an examination of the role of both parties (i.e. the tax practitioner and the client) involved in the dyadic exchange, is necessary for gaining a better understanding of the role they play in tax compliance. Based on a role dynamics framework, their expectations, identities and behaviours will be examined.

The Legality of Reproductive and Therapeutic Cloning of Human Beings

Following the announcement of the successful cloning of an animal from an adult cell, the issue of whether it should be illegal to clone human beings has become the subject of much debate. The United Nations has, over the past three years, been engaged in debates as to the nature and extent of such a ban, without arriving at a generally accepted position.

It is suggested that the debates, both at UN and State level, have overlooked the fact that any such ban on cloning might itself be illegal. The paper argues that in addition to positive and negative eugenics, both of which are illegal practices, there is a third form, passive eugenics, the scope of which can be ascertained by reference to other passive laws, in particular omissions in the law of torts. A law banning human cloning would fall into the category of passive eugenics, and as such, may be deemed of no effect. Any attempt to ban or regulate cloning must strongly consider eugenic and human rights laws.

Executive Insight 2006

The School of Accountancy is excited to be involved for the fifth consecutive time, with the Manawatu Branch of the New Zealand Institute of Chartered Accountants (the Institute), in partnership with ASB Bank Ltd, in the Executive Insight 2006 Programme.

Executive Insight is a programme where third and fourth-year accounting students are given the opportunity to observe, and to a limited extent, participate in the executive management of a business over a three-day period. This year the Executive Insight Programme is to be run in the week 21-25 August 2006. The objective of the programme is to enable students to gain insight into executive roles and the commercial decision-making process. It is also an excellent opportunity to broaden student views of potential career paths and to compare the “real world” with what has so far only been learned from textbooks.

The programme has been run successfully by other Branches of the Institute and other Tertiary Institutions. Examples of activities which students from other similar programmes have had first-hand experience of include attendance at Board meetings, meetings with CEOs, CFOs and section managers, involvement in finance and audit committee meetings, reviewing progress in overseas markets, accompanying senior managers on customer site visits and visiting their host organisation’s branches.

The School is now involved with the programme run by the Wellington Branch of the Institute, sponsored by Deloitte.

The Auckland Branch of the Institute selected two Massey University students from the Albany campus to take part in the Executive Insight programme 2005. Craig Getz spent the day at Fonterra and Timothy Kerr went to Genesis Energy. Both students spoke highly of the experience and the helpfulness of the people they spent time with. Certificates were given to each student at a dinner held to thank the participating organisations.

Massey Scholarships

Massey Scholarships are awarded to leading students as they complete their first Bachelor's degree at Massey University. The Scholarships are awarded college by college, in proportion to the number of students graduating from each college every year. The award of the scholarship is, in itself, testimony to the high academic calibre of the recipients. But for those Massey Scholars who undertake postgraduate study within one year of graduation, the Massey Scholarship also carries with it an emolument, payable for one year of full-time study.
