The School of Accountancy had many achievements in 2011 in teaching and research, and strengthening its relationships with the profession and community. The development and implementation of a strategy for greater use of IT in enhancing students’ learning experience was also an exciting initiative this year. The School is progressing with its application for AACSB accounting accreditation, and this year we hosted Professor Larry Walther, Utah State University, USA, the School’s mentor for the AACSB accounting accreditation. Professor Walther visited the Albany and Manawatu campuses during his visit and held discussions with staff.

School staff can be proud of many achievements. Professor Jill Hooks was named the Albany Students’ Association Lecturer of the Year, as well as the Best Lecturer in the College of Business. Professor Mike Bradbury was appointed as the International Association for Accounting Education and Research (IAAER) representative on the IFRS Advisory Council. Professor Fawzi Laswad was appointed deputy chair for the newly established joint Education Board of the New Zealand and Australia Institutes of Chartered Accountants.

Warwick Stent, Lecturer on the Albany campus, won the CPA Australia Best PhD Paper award at the 2011 Auckland Region Accounting Conference in November. Doctoral student Shahwali Khan won the Best Presenter award at the Annual Doctoral Symposium held recently on the Manawatu campus.

Congratulations also to Dr Nirmala Nath and Dr Warwick Stent on the completion of their PhD studies at Waikato University and Massey University, respectively. Dr Nath's thesis, “Public Sector Performance Auditing and Accountability: A Fijian Case Study”, won praise from her external examiners for an excellent presentation and her valuable contribution to this area of research. Dr Stent's thesis, A Study of Early and Late Adopters of International Financial Reporting Standards in New Zealand”, investigates accounting choice relating to the timing of adoption of International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) in New Zealand. The study includes an examination of the impact of IFRS on the disclosure of financial information. PhD student Umapathy Ananthanarayanan also completed his PhD studies. His thesis titled „The Determinants of Audit Fees in the United States and New Zealand in the Post SOX Period“ examines the audit fee determinants in both the United States and New Zealand after the introduction of SOX (US) and governance principles (NZ), respectively. Congratulations Dr Ananthanarayanan.

Alongside these considerable individual achievements, the School’s research output continued to grow in 2011. Research outputs were published in refereed journals such as the Australian Accounting Review, Journal of Business Ethics, Pacific Accounting Review, New Zealand Journal of Taxation Law and Policy, and the Australian Competition and Consumer Law Journal, amongst others. In addition, staff presented papers at various international conferences including the Accounting and Finance Association of Australia and New Zealand Conference (Brisbane), the American Accounting Association Conference (Tampa and Denver), the European Accounting Association Conference (Rome), the Asian Pacific Conference on International Accounting Issues (Beijing), and the Australian Tax Teachers’ Conference (Melbourne).

The School’s research output compares extremely favourably nationally and in the region. A study by an international group of researchers, published in Accounting and Finance in March 2012, ranked Massey’s Accounting and Finance disciplines first in New Zealand and eighth in Australasia, based on publications in top tier journals.

School of Accountancy students have also had a productive year. The Beta Alpha Psi Chapter at the Albany campus was officially installed in April 2011 by executives of the US-based BAP. Their first year after installation was very busy, organising and hosting various professional activities involving the New Zealand Institute of Chartered Accountants and the banking industry.

To support the learning of distance students, the School introduced the concept of a „virtual classroom“ by greater use of learning technologies, Adobe Presenter and Adobe Connect. All School papers use Stream, a rich on-line learning environment.

We head into 2012 with the enthusiasm and momentum of this year’s achievements behind us.

Head of School
School of Accountancy
Vision and Mission

Vision
Massey University School of Accountancy aims to be recognised as a leader in quality accounting and business law education and research.

Mission
To provide quality accounting and business law education, leading to successful career opportunities for graduates; to conduct and disseminate applied research; and to contribute positively to the accounting profession and the wider community.

Values (Guiding Principles)
The School will:

- Be student focussed and supportive of its staff
- Encourage professionalism and staff satisfaction through provision of opportunities for personal development
- Maintain quality and uphold professional standards
- Ensure its student learning programmes are relevant and up-to-date
- Encourage and support staff research
- Encourage alternative modes of delivery and learning
- Reinforce and promote the University’s strategic goals
- Embrace EEO principles
- Recognise the Treaty of Waitangi
- Maintain transparent and inclusive management systems

School Goals and Objectives
The School seeks to be recognised as a quality provider of education and research. It will attain this vision through realising goals and objectives in three key areas, learning, research, and contribution to the profession and the wider community.

Student Learning
Goal
To provide quality learning that develops and challenges the capabilities, potential and intellectual independence of students, on a life-long basis, through open entry and blended education both on and off campus.

Objectives
- To develop students' communication, analytical, and critical thinking skills.
- To develop students understanding of ethical standards and ethical dilemmas, and improving their ethical judgement.
- To support continuous improvement through a rigorous programme of evaluation and assessment
To reinforce strong commitment to research-led teaching and scholarship.
To provide all students access to on-line educational opportunities, support tools and pedagogy of a high standard.
To ensure that programmes are delivered with flexible learning and the integration of new technologies into the creation and design of curricula.
To ensure that all papers, regardless of the campus or mode of delivery, provide students with access to excellent education, supported by effective quality systems, and where relevant with appropriate national and international accreditation.

Research

Goal
To advance the reputation and performance of the School as a research unit of international standing.

Objectives
• To encourage applied research and scholarship in the pursuit of academic excellence and to recognise and reward outstanding achievement.
• To place a high priority on the support and resourcing of researchers, research groups and research activities.
• To emphasise publication in quality journals ranked as B or higher.
• To annually increase the numbers of students undertaking postgraduate research programmes and the level of scholarship and other support available to them.
• To build the research capability of the School by:
  - giving a high priority to the development of comprehensive research capability on all campuses,
  - providing researchers with infrastructure and support of high standard, and
  - identifying and nurturing new or emerging areas of research.

Profession and the Wider Community

Goal
To contribute to the profession and wider community as a source of expertise and advice.

Objectives
• To contribute to the development of the profession by actively participating in professional activities.
• To contribute to the wider community.

The Determinants of Audit Fees in the US and New Zealand in the Post SOX Period

The objective of this dissertation is to examine the influence of firm-specific factors: audit committee independence and expertise, institutional ownership, and executive compensation, on audit fees in two different institutional settings in the post-Sarbanes Oxley Act (SOX) era. Prior studies on audit fee determinants examine the influence of these factors separately, from either the demand perspective or the supply perspective. These studies find inconsistent results. This dissertation examines the influence of all of these factors together considering both the demand and supply side perspectives.

The overall results suggest that the prevalence of independent audit committees and expertise has increased over the years in both countries. Therefore, no significant effect is found for the association between audit fees, and audit committee independence and audit committee expertise, except for the negative association for audit committee expertise in 2004. The result for institutional ownership is negative and significant for the US, whereas in New Zealand it is not significant. For executive compensation, the two countries observe different incentive arrangements. The US firms have large incentive-based salaries and stock option schemes, whereas the New Zealand firms mainly have base salaries. For all of these methods of compensation, the results show that when compensation is high, audit fee is also high suggesting that auditors perceive higher audit risk when executive compensations under these schemes are high.

The findings of this dissertation provide strong support for the supply-side hypotheses of audit fee determination. The findings suggest that with better corporate governance arrangements in the post-SOX era, auditors perceive lower audit risk, which in turn, lowers audit fees. There is, however, some indication that strong regulations may have diminished the audit risk signalling capacity of audit committee independence and expertise.

Public Sector Performance Auditing and Accountability: A Fijian Case Study

This thesis examines how and theorises as to why performance auditing in the Fijian public sector was inexplicably discontinued in 1997. The Fijian socio-political history during, after and prior to the 1970-2000 period, in which the practice of performance auditing emerged, was implemented and was subsequently discontinued is explored. The study draws on critical hermeneutics to interpret the text empirics, and informs the research findings using Roberts’ (1991, 1996, 2010) interpretation of accountability.

The findings revealed that powerful actors and institutions such as the Auditors-General, Ministers of Finance, Public Service Commission, Public Accounts Committee members, auditees and the Asian Development Bank influenced the changes in public sector auditing in Fiji. During the 1970-1997 period Auditors-General [Bhim, Narain and Datt] held the government and the auditees to account by performing compliance to budget and financial attest audits. Their efforts were constrained by the Ministers of Finance who withheld funds and the Public Service Commission, which failed to recruit sufficient staff. In 1995, Auditor-General Datt undertook performance auditing without a mandate Auditors-General Datt and Jacobs efforts to seek a performance audit mandate were overlooked by the Minister of Finance (Kubuabola) during 1996-1998. In 1999 the Rabuka government enacted the new Public Finance Management Act which provided the Auditor-General with limited scope for performance auditing. The Chaudry government recalled this Act thus withholding the limited scope.

The conclusions were the Auditors -General used accounting to make visible the conduct of the auditees during the 1970-1995 period. The media extensively publicised the audit findings and disclosures creating a perception of lack of accountability. The successive indigenous Fijian led governments inspired by the need for political supremacy overlooked the audit findings and effectively deflected being held to account.
The spirit of the Westminster system of auditing was not honoured and served as a symbolic gesture. During 1995-1996 AG Datt overstepped the provisions of the 1970 Audit Act and implemented performance auditing thus incorporating non-accounting information to hold the accountors to account. Literature on performance auditing indicates that this practice is widely accepted in most western democracies this is not so in Fiji, partly because of the dominance of tribal structures and asymmetrical power distributions.

The implication for policy makers, government and Auditor-General is changes in audit scope should be accompanied by changes in relevant statute. Policy makers should infiltrate both hierarchical and socialising forms of accountability in the bureaucratic structures to enable the accountee to effectively hold the accountant to account for both accounting and non-accounting performance. Audit reports should be followed by consequences. The study also has implications for the powerful change agencies that the conflict of interest arising from asymmetrical power distribution can be resolved with socialising form of accountability. The donor agency and other change agencies such as the Auditor-General need to be sensitive to the unique political and cultural circumstances of the indigenous community in a less developed country such as Fiji.

A Study of Early and Late Adopters of International Financial Reporting Standards in New Zealand

This study investigates accounting choice relating to the timing of adoption of International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) in New Zealand i.e., the choice to voluntarily early adopt IFRS or to defer adoption of IFRS until it became mandatory. Results for 40 early adopters are measured against those of a control group of 40 late adopters. The study includes an examination of the impact of IFRS on financial information (IFRS differences), as well as analyses of qualitative information obtained from discretionary narratives in annual reports, questionnaires and interviews.

Significant IFRS differences are found for most financial statement elements and ratios for both early and late adopters. However, when IFRS differences for early adopters are compared to those for late adopters, the difference-in-differences are not found to be significant. Hence, IFRS differences result in incentives which may influence adoption timing, but these incentives are not significantly different for early and late adopters. Content analysis of discretionary narratives in annual reports reveals significant differences for all four of the measures used to assess the extent of disclosures, with early adopters providing typically twice as much disclosure as late adopters. Further analysis relating to the nature of disclosures reveals three major themes: informing of importance, potency and evaluative. For the first two of these themes, significant differences are found and early adoption persists as a significant explanatory variable, after controlling for other incentives for voluntary disclosure, such as firm size, auditor and industry. Evaluative disclosures are made by relatively few firms; are predominantly negative regarding IFRS adoption and no significant differences between early and late adopters are found for this theme. Disclosure findings reflect that early adopters attach a higher level of importance to IFRS adoption than late adopters. Survey data reveals significant differences for one of six measures of costs of IFRS as well as for a constructed „overall benefits” score and three of nine individual benefits assessed. Also, three further themes emerge from content analysis of responses regarding motivations for adoption timing, namely „activity”, „manageability” and „accounting choice”.

Overall, the findings triangulate to suggest that „accounting choice” has less explanatory power, with regard to adoption timing decisions, than „other factors” which are unrelated to the impact of IFRS on accounting information. Examples of such „other factors” include the level of importance which firms attach to IFRS adoption; evaluations of the consequences of IFRS (predominantly neutral or negative) and perceptions as to the manageability of IFRS adoption (unexpected factors influence deferral). Adoption timing decisions of both early and late adopters are found to be predominantly „dynamic” (proactive) rather than „static” (passive) activity.

Corporate Governance and Firm Performance: A Study on the Trade-off Between Real and Accrual-Based Manipulation as Mediating Factors

Prior literature provides evidence that managers use both accruals earnings management (AM) and real activities manipulation (RM) to achieve desired earnings objective. But few have studied the role of governance on RM. Cohen et al. (2007) document firms switching from AM to RM after the passage of Sarbanes-Oxley Act (SOX). I expect RM could do more harm than AM on future performance. The implication is that opportunistic managers in better governance firms are more likely to manipulate earnings through RM such as reducing R&D expenses, resulting in worse future performance.

In my study, I will use 2-stage path analysis to examine the relationship between corporate governance and future performance through AM and RM as mediating factors. In the first stage, I will investigate whether corporate governance affects the trade-off between AM and RM. In the second stage, I will explore the consequence of each type of manipulations on future firm performance. Due to the study involves multiple dependent variables that could be correlated with each other, I will adopt some multivariate statistical methods in the analysis, such as PCA, clustering, and RDA.

Disclosure of Corporate Code of Ethics

There have been increasing calls for corporate governance reforms in countries engaged in capitalistic pursuits in the past few decades. Subsumed in these calls is the drive to restore public interest and to promote better ethics among business professionals. In an era of increasing emphasis on corporate accountability, pressures for corporate betterment come not only from those who purportedly have a "stake" in corporations but also from the corporations themselves. This is reflected in the increasing number of corporations producing codes of ethics to show their ethical commitments.

Research into corporate codes of ethics has identified a variety of reasons why corporations produce codes of ethics. Most of such reasons tend to be functional and descriptive in nature and are not sufficiently insightful in their explanations. The purpose of this study is to go beyond functionality and provide a better understanding of the underlying reasons for ethical disclosures by corporations. Institutional theory is adopted to explain the conceptual component of the study, which includes a critical examination of the intricate relationships between business ethics and trust, the pressures confronting corporations, the prevalence of corporate codes of ethics, and the various reasons for code adoption. A set of propositions focused on the underlying reasons for code disclosures by companies is developed and their validity will be tested empirically by examining the ethics disclosures of the top 1000 U.S. companies between 2000 and 2010. It is hoped that such an analysis will help to explain the actions taken by the corporations to increase their ethics and trust propensity in light of regulatory guidance and any other motivations.

Volatility and Value Relevance of Comprehensive Income

This thesis investigates the issue of volatility and value relevance of comprehensive income. IASB’s latest exposure draft (IASB, 2010) proposes a single statement of comprehensive income (CI). I segment the thesis into three parts. First I investigate the volatility of CI and observe its relation with market measures of risk. Second I measure whether CI is a better measure to summarize firm’s performance. Third I assess whether CI has better predictive power to predict future operating cash flows, future net income and future CI. As asset revaluations are voluntary under IAS 16 Property, Plant and Equipment, I will show the impact on the volatility of CI, with and without revaluations.

Corporate Governance and Stock Price Synchronicity: An International Comparison

Stock price synchronicity is the tendency of stock prices to move in the same direction in a particular period of time. Morck, Yeung and Yu (MYY, 2000, using 1995 data, document that stock prices move together more (less) in low (high) GDP economies due to difference in variations in property rights arrangement of the sample countries. They also report that stock price synchronicity, defined as $R^2$ (coefficient of determination) from asset pricing model, is a useful measure of the amount of firm-specific information impounded in stock prices in international markets. Recent empirical research argues that $R^2$ does not capture firm-specific information (sales, ROA, ROE, and Size) and states that $R^2$ is affected by many other variables such as a country’s economic variables, and corporate governance measures. The question is whether GDP is the only driver of stock price synchronicity or whether firm-specific information also plays a role in stock price co-movement. The study investigates other determinants of stock price synchronicity beyond GDP specifically to explore the relation between $R^2$ and firm-specific information.

Since 1995, most of the world’s capital markets and economies have experienced many significant changes which have been brought about due to economic and corporate crises. The changes are mostly about the way corporations are governed. Most of the countries have incorporated regulatory, institutional, accounting standard-setting and CG reforms, e.g. the Sarbanes-Oxley Act (2002), Corporate Law Economic Reforms Program (CLERP, 2004), IFRS (2001), and Codes of corporate governance. There has also been a considerable shift in the political and economic systems of many of the countries of the world. These improvements in regulatory and institutional regimes and the shift towards the market system by many developing countries raise the question of whether these changes have any beneficial effects on the determinants and level of stock price co-movements. Therefore, the study investigates the effects of improved regulatory and institutional changes in reducing stock price synchronicity.

Taxing Food in New Zealand: Will a Fat Tax Reduce Obesity?

Obesity is an increasing problem in New Zealand, with the consequent increased health costs of heart disease, strokes and diabetes. The proposed research addresses the problem of obesity by investigating the effect of a tax on obesogenic foods, particularly those which are high in fat and sugar. The research explores the economic rationale for implementing food taxes, and how food tax policy should be designed and implemented in the context of the current New Zealand health and tax systems. This will be undertaken by using the Linear Expenditure System, a behavioural microsimulation model, to measure the welfare effects of an indirect tax on NZ households using the Household Economic Survey as a dataset.

The Impact of Culture, Corporate Characteristics and Governance on Corporate Social Reporting of Malaysian Shariah-Approved Companies

The main purpose of this thesis is to examine the association between religious ethical values and earnings quality. This study builds upon the principals and ethical framework of Islamic teachings (Shariah). It analyses how such ethical values affect the earnings quality of Malaysian listed firms. Shariah is the Islamic code for day-to-day conduct of individuals under Islam. It provides principles of good practices including accountability at both individual and organizational levels. The study finds a significant association between Shariah, and real and accrual-based earnings management. In particular, this study finds that Shariah is associated with lower abnormal discretionary accruals, abnormal cash flow from operations, and abnormal discretionary expenses. Further, results of the study reveal that Shariah is associated with higher levels of accounting conservatism. Overall, the results suggest that Shariah is an important monitoring mechanism in limiting managerial opportunism and, consequently, enhances the quality of accounting earnings.

Research Seminar Series

The School of Accountancy Research Seminar Series provides a valuable forum for researchers to share their research ideas, findings and policy recommendations in a variety of areas of accounting and business law. In this way they could share their ideas with, and receive feedback from the academic community as well as the wider public, including professionals. By providing an informal atmosphere that allows for active discussion, the seminar series is designed to benefit not only the presenters but also the participants. In addition, for members of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of New Zealand, attendance at the Seminar Series qualifies as Structured Continuing Professional Development (CPD).

Working Papers presented are available at the venue or from the website in PDF format or from Heather Toy (Manawatu), Natalie Snyders (Albany), and Nikki Batten (Wellington).
Seminars are usually held on Wednesday from 12pm to 2pm. Subject to availability of a suitable time slot, the School will contribute towards travel costs and accommodation (where appropriate) for visiting speakers from outside Manawatu, Albany or Wellington.

School Highlights 2011

Feona Sayles in the NBR

Feona Sayles, Business Law Lecturer in the School of Accountancy, Manawatu Campus, was quoted in a National Business Review article on bankruptcy law on 18 March 2011.

2011 Accounting Expo - Manawatu Campus

A student favourite, the Accounting Expo drew big crowds. There was the chance to talk to representatives from a range of accounting firms about opportunities and what it is like to work for them. This was an event for students looking for graduate roles in 2012, internships in 2011, or those just wanting to find out more information. Exhibitors that took part include: NZICA, KPMG, BDO, Deloitte, CPA(Aust), Palmerston North City Council and Audit NZ.

Accountancy doctoral student wins Best Presenter award

Congratulations to Shahwali Khan, PhD student in accountancy on Albany campus, for winning the best presenter award at the Annual Doctoral Symposium held recently on the Manawatu Campus, Massey University.

David White, Massey Accountancy graduate, is the new CEO of New Zealand Cricket

Former test opening batsman and leading rugby administrator David White is the new chief executive of New Zealand Cricket. He will replace Justin Vaughan, who recently announced he was stepping down because of personal reasons after more than four years in the role.

White is an experienced sports and events administrator. He is a former chief executive of Auckland Rugby and the Blues, and before that chief executive of Wellington Rugby and the Hurricanes. He recently returned to New Zealand after three years in England, as chief executive of Bristol Rugby, to head up the official travel and hospitality programme for Rugby World Cup 2011.

White is a qualified physical education teacher and completed an accountancy degree at Massey University in 1990. He is also a current board member of the New Zealand Cricket Players' Association, a role that he will need to resign from before taking up his appointment with New Zealand Cricket on February 1 next year. Visit www.stuff.co.nz for more information.
From war-torn Somalia to double degree at Massey

Ahmed Sofe was born in Somalia in 1985. His father was killed in the civil war when he was four. Following that, his pregnant mother moved Ahmed and his three younger brothers to Ethiopia where life was very difficult and education was out of the question. People were struggling to get food, water and clean facilities.

In 1999, the Sofes immigrated to New Zealand, hoping for a better life, and for medical help for Mrs Sofe through the UNHCR [United Nations Refugee Agency]. New Zealand was the first country to respond. Ahmed said New Zealand had lived up to his expectations.

After moving to Wellington, Ahmed was enrolled at Wellington High School. It was a difficult first year, he said, because he spoke little English. After high school, he went on to university at Massey, despite suggestions it would be too hard. Ahmed completed his Bachelor of Accountancy in 2007 with an A average, and his Bachelor of Business Studies, with Honours in Accounting, in 2009. He is now a Chartered Accountant for Ernst & Young.

Ahmed is very grateful for the opportunities that New Zealand gave him and his family.

CPA Australia Best PhD Paper Award

Congratulations to Warwick Stent and his supervisors, Professors Hooks and Bradbury, on winning the CPA Australia Best PhD paper award at the 2011 Auckland Region Accounting Conference, Nov 25. Warwick’s paper is titled “Costs, benefits and other survey insights relating to IFRS adoption.”

School is ready for AACSB accounting accreditation

The School of Accountancy has hosted a visit by Professor Larry Walther from Utah State University, the School’s mentor for AACSB accounting accreditation. Professor Walther met with school staff at the Albany and Manawatu campuses and provided valuable feedback on the school’s readiness for the accreditation process.
Accountancy professor voted top lecturer at Albany

Accountancy professor Jill Hooks has broken a six-year hold her male counterparts at Albany have had on the Students' Association's Lecturer of the Year awards. Professor Hooks won the award from 111 staff nominated and voted for by students.

Previous winners have all been men: Dr John Tan last year, Dr Peter Kay in 2009, Dr Felix Ram in 2007 and 2008, Mark Werman in 2006 and Dr Chris Scogings in 2005.

Professor Hooks says she is thrilled to be the first woman to take out the title in the popular event organised by the Albany Students' Association. She also won the award for favourite lecturer in the College of Business. She began teaching in 1968 at Feilding Agricultural High School, then taught at Selwyn College in Auckland and at the Auckland University of Technology, before doing a Bachelor of Business Studies extramurally at Massey followed by a Master of Management Studies and a PhD both from Massey University. She has worked at Massey since 1997.

"I’m lucky because my teaching interest – financial accounting – is also my research interest so my research provides insights and stories for my teaching," Professor Hooks says. "I like to tell stories about accounting – often court cases of creative accounting. This enables me to bring in discussion of business ethics in terms of accounting practice."

Because accounting is "case-based" it is easy to have an interactive teaching approach, she says. She also likes to be readily available for students needing assistance.

Association student advocacy coordinator Penny Lyall told the lunchtime awards presentation ceremony on Friday ‘there is nothing tokenistic in these awards. They are an authentic appreciation of your efforts.’

The Albany Students’ Association, at a function held on Friday 18 November 2011, awarded Professor Hooks the titles of ‘Lecturer of the Year for College of Business (Albany)’ and ‘Lecturer of the Year for the Albany Campus’. Congratulations Jill.

Congratulations to Dr Nath

Congratulations to Dr Nirmala Nath on the completion of her doctoral studies at Waikato University. Her thesis title is ‘Public sector performance auditing and accountability: A Fijian case study’. One of her external examiners, in praising her work, stated that Nirmala’s thesis was in the “top 5%” of those theses that she had examined. The other external examiner, also in praise, pointed to her "valuable and important contributions".
Congratulations to Dr Stent

Dr Warwick Stent achieved his PhD degree and graduated at Massey University Albany campus graduation ceremony recently in April. He began working on his doctoral thesis in 2007. Teaching full time and finishing a PhD degree at the same time is extremely hard work and Warwick is grateful for the supportive environment the School and colleagues have given him.

Warwick researched the differences between early and late adopters of International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) in New Zealand for his thesis. His research shows that, while IFRS resulted in significant differences to financial statements and ratios, most IFRS adoption timing decisions were driven by factors other than the effects on accounting information.

Congratulations Dr Warwick Stent.

A huge milestone for Massey’s BAP

Congratulations to the executive and members of BAP Massey Chapter on the installation of the Chapter by the US based BAP International. BAP International President installed the chapter on the Albany Campus in April 2011.

Photos show the participants at the installation ceremony.

In 2011, Beta Alpha Psi hosted a panel of graduates from KPMG, Deloitte, PwC, and Ernst & Young on the Albany campus to answer questions and relay their experiences. It also organised an NZICA-sponsored mock interview workshop with senior recruiters from KPMG, Ernst & Young, PwC, Deloitte, ANZ or ASB.

Participants at the BAP meeting.
The Internship in Business Programme

Bachelor of Business Studies student Sam White, who is majoring in accountancy, received the Toyota New Zealand Internship in Business Prize for 2011, which covered the fees for his eight papers this year. He received the prize because he had the highest grade point average of all the interns for 2011. Mr White is also a Dean's List student based on his academic excellence. His internship was at Arohanui Hospice in Palmerston North where he tackled the monthly budget, forecasting ahead and worked with accounting software MYOB and XERO.

Mr White said he had improved his communication skills, had the opportunity to actually use accounting software in a real “Kiwī” business and increased his self-confidence. He hoped he had given the hospice a more accurate budget and contributed to efficient use of employees’ time.

Executive Insight 2011

The Executive Insight Programme is run on each campus with the local branch of the New Zealand Institute of Chartered Accountants (NZICA). The programme aims to give students insight into executive roles and the commercial decision-making process, and to broaden their views of potential career paths in accounting-related functions. Each participant works with a carefully selected host organisation over a three-day period, usually late in August. Participants receive a certificate on successful completion of the programme, but usually find that the main benefits are the contacts that they make and the insights that they gain into how organisations actually work. 2011 is the 10th consecutive year for this programme.

Albany

Two students from the Albany campus were selected for the Executive Insight programme in 2011: Gina Chapman and Charlotte Hull. Gina was hosted by Restaurant Brands and Charlotte by ASB Bank. The students really enjoyed their experience and gained valuable insights into the role of business executives and business life. The students who take part in Executive Insight are required to submit a report to the NZ Institute of Chartered Accountants.

Gina Chapman with Russel Creedy, CEO of Restaurant Brands
Manawatu

At the Manawatu Campus three students participated in the 2011 Executive Insight Programme. Elliot Cave was hosted by Toyota New Zealand, Sarah Elliot was hosted by Iplex Pipelines and Nicole Cook was hosted by Palmerston North City Council. Sarah Elliot won the best Executive Insight 2011 (Manawatu) Student Report prize sponsored by Telecom.

Wellington

Two Massey students had a Wellington Executive Insight experience in 2011: Rachael Stiles was hosted by KPMG, and Judy Van de Veen was hosted by Markhams Miller Dean Audit. Both students enjoyed their experience and produced good reports.

Paul Dunmore and Judith Pinny were Massey Wellington representatives on the NZICA Executive Insight Committee in 2011. The Judges Award was sponsored by the School of Accountancy.

Paul Dunmore presented Judges Award to winner, Matthew Woolley, of Victoria University, at the October prize giving.

Obituary

Professor Martin Reginald (Reg) Mathews
1940-2012

It is with sadness that we received news from Australia about the passing away of Professor Mathews on 8th March 2012. Professor Mathews was one of the School of Accountancy’s founding professors. He made a significant mark on the study and research of many students and colleagues at Massey and many other universities. Many of current Massey College of Business alumni and business associates will remember Professor Mathews for his contribution.

Among many distinguished qualifications, Professor Mathews held Bachelor of Business from Victoria University, Master of Social Science, Birmingham, Master of Philosophy, Loughborough University UK and Massey University and Doctor of Education from Montana USA.

Professor Mathews joined Massey in 1979. He became Professor of Accounting in 1985. In 1989 he was appointed Associate Dean within the Faculty of Business Studies (now College of Business) and subsequently he served as the Director of the Office of Massey Graduate Studies from 1993-1997. He was a visiting professor at La Trobe University in 1998 and Western Washington University in 1997 1999 and 2000, Aston Business School in 2000 and was Honorary Fellow CSEAR, University of Dundee. In 2001 Professor Mathews left Massey University and joined his family in Australia where he become a Professor in Accounting at Charles Sturt University.

Professor Mathews was a leading researcher on social and environmental accounting much before it became a fashionable research topic. He was one of the thought leaders in environmental accounting and accounting education. For his contribution to those fields he was recognised by the Faculty of Business and Law of Victoria University in Melbourne as a “Treasure of the Commerce Faculty”. He also had a book dedicated to his work in 2007 titled “Social Accounting, Mega Accounting and Beyond: A festschrift in honour of M. R. Mathews”, which was published by the Centre for Social and Environmental Accounting Research at the University of St Andrews.

Professor Mathew’s contribution to accounting education around the world was recognised by the British Accounting Association Education Group in 2005 by awarding him the Lifetime Service Award.

Professor Mathews served on editorial boards of a number of international business and academic journals such as Social and Environmental Accounting, Accounting Auditing and Accountability Journal, Accounting Forum and the International Journal of Accounting, to name a few. He collaborated on and wrote himself a number of books as well as a large number of refereed journal articles, non-refereed journal articles, book reviews and discussion papers.

The international accountancy profession also recognised Professor Mathews’ contribution to services to the profession by awarding him the Institute of Chartered Accountants of New Zealand Fellowship (FCA) as well as Certified Practising Accountants Australia awarded him the CPA Fellowship (FCPA). He was also a CMA. Professor Reg Mathews will be sadly missed.
Academic Programmes and Accreditations

Professional Accreditations

College of Business has AACSB Accreditation

Massey University College of Business achieved international accreditation for its business degrees; Bachelor of Business Studies (BBS), Bachelor of Accountancy (BAcc), Bachelor of Applied Economics (BApplEcon), Master of Business Administration (MBA), Master of Business Studies (MBS), Master of Finance (MFin) Master of Management (MMgt), Doctor of Business Administration (DBA) and its Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) programme in business.

AACSB is a professional association for college and university management education institutions and is the premier accrediting agency for bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degree programs in business administration and accounting. Of around 10,000 business schools in the world, fewer than 600 are accredited by AACSB International - The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business. The accreditation represents the highest standard of achievement for business schools worldwide. See http://www.aacsb.edu/.

School of Accountancy Accreditations

Bachelor of Accountancy (BAcc) and Bachelor of Business Studies (BBS)

The School of Accountancy has accreditation from the following professional bodies:-

- Chartered Institute of Management Accountants (CIMA) (UK)
- Association of Chartered Certified Accountants (ACCA) UK
- New Zealand Institute of Chartered Accountants (NZICA)
- Certified Practising Accountants (CPA) Australia
Academic Programmes

Semesters and Summer School

The Massey University academic year is divided into three main teaching periods: Semester One, Semester Two and Summer School. Most of the School’s programmes of study and papers fit into these standard semester periods although the School’s Summer study programmes have become increasingly popular.

Internal and Distance Learning Studies

Some papers in the School are offered internally and extramurally (Distance Learning mode). Some others are offered internally or extramurally. Distance Learning programmes offer opportunities for long distance study at the comfort of a student’s own environment. Distance Learning programmes may include contact/block courses. Contact courses are a chance for students to receive face-to-face tuition from lecturers and to interact with other students taking the same paper. Contact courses may be held at the Albany, Manawatu and Wellington Campuses of Massey University. Some papers are offered in block mode. This means students are required to attend one or more periods of intensive study usually either in the Manawatu or Albany Campus.

Undergraduate Programmes

Bachelor of Accountancy (BAcc)

The Bachelor of Accountancy (BAcc) is a highly specialised degree, identifying you as having expertise in Accountancy. It is the degree for students who know they wish to specialise as Accountants and seek NZICA membership.

Accountancy Major in the Bachelor of Business Studies (BBS)

The BBS Accountancy major is very flexible and gives you the opportunity to have a concentration in a particular area of accountancy. You can also combine the Accountancy major with one offered by another Department to complete the BBS with a double major. Career options will be many and varied depending on the combination of papers you choose to take.

Graduate Diploma in Business Studies (GradDipBusStuds)

The Graduate Diploma in Business Studies (GradDipBusStuds) is designed for students who wish to develop new or additional professional skills to open up and enhance vocational possibilities. The GradDipBusStuds may be completed in one year of full-time study or over a period of time as part-time study.
Postgraduate Programmes

The courses of study offered by the School of Accountancy at the graduate level are aimed at preparing a more independent and inquiring mind. Through their course work, students are encouraged to conduct systematic inquiry into specific issues and discover new information or relationships and/or expand or verify existing knowledge for some identified purpose.

The School of Accountancy offers graduate programmes at Postgraduate Diploma and Masters levels, leading to:

- Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)
- Master of Philosophy (MPhil)
- Master of Business Studies (MBS)
- Master of Business Studies (Accountancy)
- Master of Business Studies (Business Law)
- Master of Management (MMgt)
- Master of Management (Accountancy)
- Master of Management (Business Law)
- Postgraduate Diploma of Accountancy (PGDipAcc)
- Bachelor of Business Studies with Honours (BBS[Hons])
- Bachelor of Business Studies with Honours (Accountancy)
- Bachelor of Business Studies with Honours (Business Law)
- Postgraduate Diploma in Business Administration (PGDipBusAdmin)
