Head of School’s Report

Continuous improvement is given high priority in the School of Accountancy and in 2015, we reviewed our Mission Statement with input from both staff and the School Advisory Board. The revised and improved Mission Statement will guide the School in being recognised as a leader in accounting and business law education and research.

Following the School’s digital strategy, we have successfully implemented the ‘virtual classroom’ and now provide Adobe Connect on-line classes for distant learning students in all papers. The Connect classes are recorded and then made available to all students. Other continuous improvements include on-line marking for all assignments which enables students to receive results and feedback in a timelier manner. In 2015, we successfully trialled ‘Top Hat’, a comprehensive interactive teaching platform, and more papers will adopt this new technology in 2016. Also in 2016, the School plans to trial a new digital approach to student consultation by offering office hours via the video technology ‘Zoom’.

The School has also implemented Assurance of Learning for the new Master of Professional Accounting and Finance (MPAF) programme which is gaining popularity amongst international and domestic postgraduate students. With the huge success of the MPAF on the Albany campus, the School plans to offer the MPAF programme on the Wellington campus in the second semester of 2016.

The PhD programme in the School celebrates its 30th anniversary in 2016. Established in 1986, the programme has had 23 graduates. These graduates are now senior academics in New Zealand, Australia, the UK, Malaysia and Pakistan. Currently, eight doctoral students are perusing their studies in the School. Students’ diverse nationalities include New Zealand, Pakistan, Thailand, Indonesia, and Bangladesh.

The School continues to have an impact on the accounting profession. The New Zealand External Reporting Board (XRB) selected a research team from the School (Prof Fawzi Laswad, Drs Nives Botica Redmayne, Warwick Stent and Charlie Cai) to conduct a research project on the ‘Information Needs of Users of New Zealand Capital Market Entity Financial Reports’. This project commenced in February 2015 and continued for the best part of the year. The XRB has published the research report in March 2016.

Dr Haiyan Jiang had a successful application for CPA’s Global Research Perspectives Program. CPA provided $AU15,000 for her research project ‘Is Short Selling Associated with Greater Real Earnings Management? – International Evidence’.

Massey Business School (MBS) held the Research Translation Competition in November 2015. In this competition, Dr Borhan Bhuiyan received one of only three Early Career Researcher Awards with his research article titled ‘Are Related Party Transactions Red Flags?’ Dr Nirmala Nath and Kimberley Thornton’s article ‘Lean in New Zealand: Understanding the Link between Accounting and Strategy’ won the Best Student Paper Award at the 9th New Zealand Management Accounting Conference. Dr Warwick Stent received the 2015 Emerald Literati Network Award for Excellence - the Meditari Accountancy Research Outstanding Reviewer Award. Tutor Christelle Roos won the MBS STAR Award for her excellent contribution to Distance Teaching and Learning. Congratulations and well done.

The School did well in research publications in 2015. Thirty two articles were published in refereed journals, three chapters were published in books, and fourteen papers were presented at national and international conferences.

School staff continues to engage with the profession and the community. Dr Nives Botica Redmayne was elected to the council of the accounting professional body, Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand (CA ANZ). Professor Fawzi Laswad has chaired the Education Board of CA ANZ for the last two years. Dr Matt Berkahn participated in the ‘Big Issues in Business’ video series of Massey Business School (MBS). The purpose of these videos is to showcase MBS expertise and the relevance of our research to industry and the business community. A video highlighting his research on company directors' duties was filmed and made available on-line.

The School continues to engage with the community. In collaboration with the Palmerston North Council of Community Services, Palmerston North City Council and the Department of Internal Affairs we have developed the Community Accounting initiative. Community Accounting involves second and third year students in providing financial advice to not-for-profit community organisations under the supervision of chartered accountants. The School participated and supported the initiative to enable students to gain valuable experience and be good citizens. Community Accounting had a successful inaugural year in 2015. Fourteen students participated in Community Accounting and ran clinics and training sessions for treasurers of community groups while also providing accounting advice to not-for-profit entities.

To improve students’ experiences on campus, we have established accountancy clubs on the Albany and Manawatu campuses. Dr Hedy Huang mentors the Albany Accountancy Club and Dr Radiah Othman and Mrs Elana Stalmann mentor the Manawatu Accountancy Club. The clubs have been very active in 2015, organising net-working seminars, presentations by business professionals, technology workshops, career trips, and social events.

The School values the contribution of its staff. In 2015, we organised events on the Manawatu and Albany campuses to celebrate staff members' long service to the School. The staff recognised for long service were: Dr Matt Berkahn (started 1994) 21 years; Dr Nives Botica Redmayne (1992) 23 years; Frances Chua (1987) 28 years; Lindsay Hawkes (1987) 28 years; Dr Lin Mei Tan (1987) 28 years; Associate Professor Lindsay Trotman (1980) 35 years; and Trish O’Sullivan (1996) 20 years. Also in 2015, the School said farewell to Senior Secretary, Heather Toy, when she retired after 21 years of service. We wish Heather a happy retirement.

School staff at the Albany campus celebrated the move to new offices in 2015. The Albany staff moved to the newly refurbished level one of the Study Centre building, which has been renamed the Massey Business School.

The 2015 academic year has been a good one for the School with many accomplishments. We look forward to 2016 as the School will be seeking new opportunities to further develop its reputation as a leader in accounting and business law education and research.

PhD Research

Accountancy PhD programme is 30 years old in 2016

Some reflections on the programme’s early years
In the mid 1980s the Department of Accounting and Finance, as the School was then called, was seen mainly as a teaching unit in Massey University. The need for a PhD programme became evident and essential in cultivating a research culture, to gain recognition within the wider international academic community and to attract high quality staff and postgraduate students. The aim of the programme was to produce independent researchers who have the capacity to advance the accounting frontier and to train others to do the same. The formative years had the difficulties of changing the non-research culture of the Department and a lack of sufficient senior staff who were capable of providing research supervision. A PhD in accounting was not very favoured at that time. Thus, PhD students were few and far between. However, staff members were encouraged to embark on the PhD adventure, and many did.

Thirty years on …
Today, the semi structured programme is popular with staff and postgraduate students. The programme is designed to provide maximum flexibility for students to explore the areas under investigation. The School has come a long way during the last 30 years in changing its image from that of mainly teaching to one with a strong emphasis on research. The percentage of PhD qualified senior staff with supervisory skills has improved tremendously. Now the School has the capacity to offer supervision at a doctoral level in a wide range of accounting subjects through methodological and other approaches. Many completed doctoral projects have addressed empirical as well as deep philosophical and theoretical issues in accounting.

The future
Our PhD programme has come of age. The challenge for the future is to improve on what we have already achieved and to strengthen the School’s position as a respectable member of the national and international academic community.

Discourse Analysis of Corporate Codes of Ethics

There have been increasing calls for corporate governance reforms in countries engaged in capitalistic pursuits in the past few decades. Subsumed in these calls is the drive to restore public interest in and to promote better ethics among business professionals. In an era of increasing emphasis on corporate accountability, pressures for corporate betterment come not only from those who purportedly have a “stake” in corporations but also from the corporations themselves. This is reflected in the increasing number of corporations producing codes of ethics to show their ethical commitments.

The impetus of this study arose from a desire to provide an understanding of the discursive role of corporate codes of ethics in (re)gaining public trust and legitimacy in light of increasing challenges to corporate legitimacy. As a crucial part of corporate discourse, corporate codes could help to signal corporations’ ethical commitment to self-restraint and self-regulation. The study conducted a discourse analysis of 100 global corporate codes of ethics using a three-level analytical framework to ascertain the relationship between the “text” and the “context” of the codes. It also used institutional theory and rhetorical concepts to generate a set of propositions focusing on the underlying reasons for code disclosure. It tested the validity of these propositions empirically through content analysis and rhetorically through a critical examination of code language. It is hoped that such an analysis will help to explain how corporations employ the persuasive power of code language to increase their ethics and trust propensity in light of regulatory guidance and any other motivations.

Disclosure quality, audit fee and market performance of firms connected with power sources

Organisations often form ties with sources of power to attain an indirect authority to influence others outside the organisation (Hillman, 2005). Prior literature has identified political institutions as the main sources of power, therefore, companies connected to politicians. My thesis is based on the argument that political institutions are not the only source of power. For example, Bhave and Kingstone (2010) identify the Pakistan Army as another source of power. Siddiqi (2007) argues that Pakistan military controls 7% of the national GDP, controls one third of heavy manufacturing, and controls 6-7% of private sector assets. Similarly, Khwaja and Mian (2005) argue that regardless of their 42% higher default rate, politically connected firms in Pakistan are preferentially treated by banks in terms of access to credit. My thesis aims to examine the relative differences in disclosure quality, audit fee, directors’ remuneration, and market performance of firms connected to the two (the political and the army) parallel power sources.

Income statement classification by International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS): The prediction of earnings and component shifting

This study investigates the International Financial Reporting Standards income statement classifications related to Other Comprehensive Income (OCI) and Discontinued Operations (DCO). These classifications give managers the discretion to shift expenses within comprehensive income. I examine if these classifications improve the forecasting of profitability or whether these classifications are opportunistically used by managers. This topic is academically motivated by Accounting classification and the predictive content of earnings by Fairfield, Sweeney and Yohn (1996) and Earnings management using classification shifting: An examination of core earnings and special items by McVay (2006). This will be the first study that combines the methodologies in both these papers and also applies them to discontinued operations and items of other comprehensive income. The study is professionally motivated because the International Accounting Standards Board has a project on performance reporting. Items of OCI are part of the discussions on the revision of the conceptual framework. Data will be collected from the ASX listed companies’ comprehensive income statements between 2005 and 2013. There are more than 2000 companies listed in the ASX and the total sample will be around 18,000 firm/year data (2000*9years).

Firms’ financial accounting and assurance practices under Australian Carbon Tax and New Zealand’s Emission Trading Scheme: An exploratory study

The purpose of this study is to survey the carbon financial accounting practices of the companies affected under Australian Carbon Tax and New Zealand’s Emission Trading Scheme (ETS). It will present the findings as guidance on carbon financial accounting in the absence of a uniform standard. Added to this survey will be an examination of the relation between (1) firms’ characteristics; (2) firms’ carbon emission levels carbon emissions related disclosures and the way carbon accounting is being conducted in the affected companies. The findings presented by this study will be useful for establishing a guideline for accountants and auditors to help affected companies financially account for carbon allowances. The findings will also be useful to accounting policy makers in understanding how and why the affected companies financially account for their carbon allowances in a certain way. This can further help the accounting policy makers in developing a uniform carbon financial accounting guidance, given that IASB is yet to issue draft guidance on the financial accounting of carbon emission. Lastly, with the scant amount of literature available in the field of financial accounting and assurance of carbon emissions under Carbon Tax and ETS, this project will also give meaningful insight to academics and researchers to further their studies into this subject.

The perception of the needs for generic skills among accounting graduates, accounting educators and employers: A comparison between Saudi Arabia and New Zealand

With the development in economic environment and technologies as well as an increase in business challenges, employers have increasingly emphasised the need for accounting graduates to acquire generic skills at tertiary education. However, an overview of the literature on generic skills suggest that generic skills developed within accounting education courses do not match market requirements (e.g. Albrecht and Sack, 2000; De Lange et al., 2006; Hawkers, 2003). Generic skills are certainly of importance to accounting graduates as they help them to stand out among other job seekers and advance their careers (Awe, 2014). The aim of this study is to examine and compare the perceptions of accounting graduates, accounting educators and employers on generic skills in New Zealand (a developed country) and Saudi Arabia (a developing country). First, it will explore what do accounting lecturers provide in developing generic skills in the university and what they believe that accounting graduates receive and require in terms of generic skills that can meet the needs of Saudi and New Zealand employers. Second, this study will identify the most important generic skills for accounting graduates, and whether they achieve them at the university and whether these skills meet the expectations of employers. Third, it will examine from the Saudi and New Zealand employers’ perspective what they expect accounting graduates should have in terms of generic skills, to satisfy workplace requirements. A conceptual framework of generic skills is developed for this study. The study will contribute to the literature an understanding of the perceptions of the importance of generic skills by employers, accounting educators, accounting graduates in two different countries with different cultural dimensions (Hofstede’s cultural dimension theory) and economic development. Moreover, this study would contribute to bridging the gap between education at university and the workplace in the development of generic skills of accounting graduates.

Analysis of the usefulness of deferred tax pre and post IFRS

Deferred tax has been described as pointless in the sense that deferred taxes measure something that has no practical application or purpose and that many professional directors do not regard this accounting entry as a real liability in the economic sense (NBR August 2010). This thesis examines whether deferred tax: (1) provides incremental information about future tax payments and (2) is value relevant. I use the Cheung, Cheung, Krishnan and Min (1997) one year ahead model to assess the predictive value of deferred tax and the Wong, Wong and Naiker (2011) model to assess its value relevance. Both the pre and post International Financial Reporting Standards (‘IFRS’) settings are examined. Pre IFRS the firms are free to choose between the comprehensive and partial basis for calculating deferred tax using the income statement method. Post IFRS firms are required to use the balance sheet method.

Accounting complexity, audit quality and financial analyst forecasting in Australia

The main objective of this study is to investigate the impact of accounting complexity arising from International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) on Audit risks (by proxy of Audit price) and analysis of forecasting properties in Australia. Extant literature on IFRS however raises some questions as to whether it’s objective and desired outcomes are being achieved. This study takes a different approach from the extant literature by refining the measurement of accounting complexity in order to offer deeper insights regarding complex standards and how these are affecting auditors and analysts. I select six standards identified in the literature as complex standards and then use the year-end adjustment taken from AGAAP-AIFRS reconciliation statements of all Australian listed companies as a measure the IFRS complexity. I use this measure to examine the relationship between complex standards and audit risk as proxied by audit fees. This study therefore has the potential to offer deeper insights regarding complex standards and how these are affecting auditors and analysts. Finally, this study investigates how the relationship between accounting complexity and financial analyst forecasting properties are moderated by auditor quality. This study use auditor industry specialisation following the measurement of(Krishnan, Chan, & Qian, 2013) as proxy for audit quality. Australia is chosen for this study because the Australian Accounting Standards Board (AASB) did not allow early adoption of IFRS. Australia has been a leader in the adoption of IFRS and actively participate in the process to have IFRS accepted as a set of accounting standards that could be globally accepted (Lucy, 2005).

Related party transactions, political connections and financial reporting quality in Indonesia

The recent corporate collapses in the US and other parts of the world have caused serious concerns about the credibility of financial reporting. The low quality of financial reporting is caused by corporate frauds and manipulation. One of the mechanisms used by companies to conduct those fraudulent activities is through related party transactions (RPTs). Concerns are raised for RPTs because RPTs might not take place in arm’s length conditions and the dominant company might use its power to arrange transactions with its less dominant affiliates so that the former might achieve income reporting objectives. The motivation for this study relates to some unique institutional features of Indonesia. Indonesia has a high concentration on ownership which might have a negative impact on corporate governance and reliability of accounting information. In addition, it is quite common practice in Indonesia that most of top management is connected to the family of controlling shareholders so that the agency problem is not between shareholders and management but between controlling shareholders and minority interests in the form of expropriation. Some research claims that the values of some firms in Indonesia are highly influenced by political connections. The objective of the study is to broaden understanding of the effect of RPTs as a mechanism for tunnelling or propping up, conducted by politically connected firms in Indonesia. Different from previous studies on RPTs, political connections and audit quality issues will be considered. The outcome of this study will provide analyses and evidence about whether RPTs are being used by controlling shareholders to manage earnings of their listed firms in the Indonesian Stock Exchange. In addition, the research will shed light on the governance role played by external auditors for ensuring credible financial reporting in Indonesia.

Patching up the differences: An exploration of gang identity in Whanganui

This research will explore adult NZ gang identity and the ways that visible signs of this identity have been interpreted by members of the Whanganui community. This research arose as a result of the District Council (Prohibition of Gang Insignia) Act 2009 (‘Gang Insignia Act 2009’) which allows the Whanganui District Council to make bylaws prohibiting the wearing of gang insignia in certain areas. The ‘Gang Insignia Act 2009’ reflects a view that the wearing of gang insignia should be considered a social problem that requires legal intervention. My research will adopt a social constructionist perspective and will seek to discover the meanings attributed to gang insignia by members of the Whanganui community, how these meanings have developed, and the consequences arising from adopting the legislative meaning. My research will involve an analysis of media representations of ‘gangs’ alongside semi-structured interviews with gang members, the public, and other relevant parties in Whanganui.

Online shopping: Pearls and pitfalls for New Zealand consumers – How to increase consumer protection and confidence

The general theme of my study will be to identify the legal issues faced by consumers shopping online and to develop ideas for improving consumer protection and confidence in online shopping. An increase in consumer confidence should lead to an increase in the levels of retail shopping online which would have flow-on economic benefits. Recent reports and surveys in New Zealand and Australia show that online shopping currently makes up 5-6% of all retail shopping and increased by around 12% in Australia in the 12 months ending in July 2011. With the level at between 5 and 6 % of all retail shopping there is scope for significant further growth in online shopping. Online shopping has significant economic benefits for retailers – among other things, they do not need to lease expensive retail space, they have reduced overhead costs and their customers can shop all hours. These benefits can lead to reduced prices for consumers and more shopping choices. An OECD report released in November 2009 notes, “Given the significant benefits of e-commerce to the economy and to consumers, it is important for governments and stakeholders to work together to ensure that the benefits are fully realised, which includes finding ways to boost consumer confidence in online transactions.”
Discussion Paper Series

Editor: Professor Jill Hooks

The Discussion Paper Series of the School of Accountancy is intended to provide staff and postgraduate students of the School with a means of communicating new and developing ideas in order to facilitate academic debate. Discussion papers should not necessarily be taken as completed works or final expressions of opinion.

All discussion papers are quality-assured, being formally peer-reviewed prior to publication. Views expressed are those of the authors, and are not necessarily shared by the School of Accountancy.

Normally discussion papers may be freely quoted or reproduced provided proper reference to the author and source is given. When a discussion paper is issued on a restricted basis, notice of an embargo on quotation/reproduction will appear on this page.

Abstracts of discussion papers, as well as most full papers, are available as pdf documents on our School’s webpage.

The Discussion Paper Series started in 1981. A list of all discussion papers published by the School is available at the back of each discussion paper. A hard copy of any full paper, provided it is in stock, may be obtained from:

Research Seminar Series

The School of Accountancy Research Seminar Series provides a valuable forum for researchers to share their research ideas, findings and policy recommendations in a variety of areas of accounting and business law. In this way they can share their ideas with, and receive feedback from, the academic community as well as the wider public, including professionals. By providing an informal atmosphere that allows for active discussion, the seminar series is designed to benefit not only the presenters but also the participants. In addition, for members of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of New Zealand, attendance at the Seminar Series qualifies as Structured Continuing Professional Development (CPD). Working Papers presented are available at the venue or from the website in PDF format or from Natalie Snyders (Albany), Inez Goldsworthy (Manawatu), and Nikki Batten (Wellington).

Seminars are usually held on Wednesday from 12pm to 1pm. The Manawatu Standard profiled Palmerston North Community Accounting

Accounting help for charities

Help is at hand for Manawatu not-for-profit organisations and community groups struggling to manage their finances.

A joint initiative, coordinated by the Palmerston North Community Services Council is profiling Massey University accounting students with charities for free financial advice sessions.

Coordinator Michelle Mokhuma said the project was timely because new reporting requirements have increased the responsibilities for financial managers of charities.

“We saw the need for financial management training for not-for-profits. In particular, it’s hard to find people to talk on the role of treasurer,” she said. “They often require information and support about what they are supposed to be doing.”

“Currently we have three groups of students. By the end of this semester, they will have seen 10 not-for-profits.”

The groups ask for all sorts of advice, from discussing the role of treasurer to the sort of accounting packages that are available to them to run a cash book.

“Sometimes, the advice is you’re doing a really good job,” she said.

Feedback from the groups has been positive.

“Users of the service say that the students are extremely helpful and they would recommend it to others,” she said.

Clinics are designed to address specific problems or knowledge gaps, which community groups identify at the time of booking.

During the session a team of four students consults with each client and defines the issues.

They then provide targeted advice, monitored by a chartered accountant.

Melvin van der Spyk is a third-year accounting student who volunteered as part of the programme.

“It’s a really great learning experience,” she said of the clinic.

“I really enjoyed it and there was a good outcome as the client went away reassured she was on the right track,” she said.

The clinics are on Mondays from 6pm to 7pm at the Department of Internal Affairs on the corner of Moli St and The Square.

Academic Programmes

Semesters and Summer School

The Massey University academic year is divided into three main teaching periods: Semester One, Semester Two and Semester Three (Summer School). Most of the School’s programmes of study and papers fit into these standard semester periods. Some research papers cover a double semester period. The School’s Summer study programmes have become increasingly popular.

Internal and Distance Learning Studies

Some papers in the School are offered Internally and some in Distance Learning mode. Distance Learning programmes offer opportunities for long distance study at the comfort of a student’s own environment. Distance Learning programmes may include block courses. However, these courses are being phased out as the School makes use of Digital Learning and Teaching through the Internet more frequently.

Undergraduate Programmes

Bachelor of Accountancy (BAcc)

The Bachelor of Accountancy (BAcc) is a highly specialised degree, identifying you as having expertise in Accountancy. It is the degree for students who know they wish to specialise as Accountants and seek Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand or Certified Practising Accountants Australia (CPA Aust) membership.

Accountancy Major in the Bachelor of Business Studies (BBS(Acct))

The BBS Accountancy major is very flexible and gives you the opportunity to have a concentration in a particular area of accountancy. You can also combine the Accountancy major with one offered by another Department to complete the BBS with a double major. Career options will be many and varied depending on the combination of papers you choose to take.

Bachelor of Business Law minor

In 2015, the Bachelor of Business Law minor becomes part of the BBS programme. The goal of the minor as part of the BBS is to give students, in addition to skill sets in their major area of study and those of the BBS as a whole, an enhanced knowledge of areas of business law. The objective is that, while not being able to supplant the role of the qualified lawyer, the graduate with the law minor would be equipped to identify those situations where it is necessary to seek qualified legal assistance, and recognise when a proposed course of action or inaction could give rise to legal liabilities and to alert decision makers accordingly.

The papers that can be put towards the minor are listed here: http://www.massey.ac.nz/massey/learning/colleges/college-business/school-accountancy/study/business-law/minor-in-business-law.cfm.
Graduate Diploma in Business Studies (GradDipBusStuds)

The Graduate Diploma in Business Studies (GradDipBusStuds) is designed for students who wish to develop new or additional professional skills to open up and enhance vocational possibilities. The GradDipBusStuds may be completed in one year of full-time study or over a period of time as part-time study.

Postgraduate Programmes

The courses of study offered by the School of Accountancy at the graduate level are aimed at preparing a more independent and inquiring mind. Through their course work, students are encouraged to conduct systematic inquiry into specific issues and discover new information or relationships and/or expand or verify existing knowledge for some identified purpose.

The School of Accountancy offers graduate programmes at Postgraduate Diploma and Masters levels, leading to:

- Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)
- Master of Philosophy (MPhil)
- Master of Business Studies (MBS)
- Master of Business Studies (Accountancy)
- Master of Management (MMgt)
- Master of Management (Accountancy)
- Master of Professional Accountancy and Finance (MPAF)
- Postgraduate Diploma in Business Administration (PGDipBusAdmin)
- Postgraduate Diploma of Accountancy (PGDipAcc)
- Bachelor of Business Studies with Honours (BBS[Hons])
- Bachelor of Business Studies with Honours (Accountancy)

The Master of Professional Accountancy and Finance (MPAF)

The MPAF is the only professional Master’s degree in New Zealand where the two popular disciplines, accountancy and finance, have been combined. Newly established in 2013, it is open to graduates with a Bachelor’s degree in any discipline and is available by block mode on the Albany campus or by distance learning.

For more information about the MPAF, contact: mpaf@massey.ac.nz or visit the Facebook page: www.facebook.com/MPAF.Massey.
